

Would you like to work in beautiful Atlantic Canada?

Full-time midwife to begin in late June/early July 2017

- South Shore Community Midwives was established in April 2009 and is one of the first three midwifery sites in Nova Scotia. It is a small, supportive, rural midwifery practice of two midwives, providing services to the residents of Nova Scotia's South Shore.
- We practice in a primary care model with a case load of around 3 clients per month per midwife with privileges at South Shore Regional Hospital in Bridgewater, and an approximate 30-40% home birth rate. We have second attendants to assist at home births, allowing for regular off-call time. Our clinic is located in the charming town of Lunenburg, by the sea.
- Midwives are employed by the Nova Scotia Health Authority, and are respected members of the local maternity care team with excellent communication and relationships with nurses, obstetricians, family physicians and nurse practitioners in the area.
- We enjoy serving a diverse clientele.

The South Shore has several picturesque small towns scattered throughout the rural landscape, with beautiful beaches, rivers and pristine coastline; lovely inland forests and many parks. Sail, surf, cycle or stroll - our varied landscape offers abundant outdoor opportunities. Our small communities are rich in history as evidenced in our unique and well preserved architecture. South Shore is host to a variety of organic farms, and weekly farmers' markets in the summer. A lively music scene, several projects around local sustainable living and strong, growing communities make the South Shore a beautiful and engaging place to live and work.

We are happy to work with new registrants!

If you would like more information, please see the job posting: Midwife South Shore Posting or feel free to call us at (902) 634 7375 or write an email to leslie.niblett@nshealth.ca or maren.dietze@nshealth.ca.