New Beginnings Midwifery of Prince George, BC is seeking a locum midwife to cover for one of our team members from July 1st, 2019 to August 31st, 2019, preferably someone in the rural locum program. New Registrants will be considered but experienced midwives are preferred.

New Beginnings Midwifery is comprised of one solo midwife and a team of two midwives sharing a caseload of 8 to 10 clients/month. We have a homebirth rate of about 35%. The locum we seek is for one of the shared-care midwives, who alternate clinic weeks and have every second week off call. Our clinic is located in downtown Prince George and has part time administrative support. The right candidate may have use of the midwife's home during the locum, which is 5 minutes drive from both the clinic and the hospital. Locum Privileges will need to be obtained at the University Hospital of Northern BC, which is a Level III Trauma facility and teaching hospital with 1,100 births annually.

Prince George is a thriving northern community with population of 74,000 which has undergone a recent culture shift influenced by the popularity of the University of Northern BC. There are a great deal of activities available here; great yoga, cafes and pubs with live music downtown as well as beautiful hiking and camping opportunities in all directions outside of town. The city sits at the intersection of the Nechako and Fraser Rivers, and is a major hub for the north of BC. There is high demand for midwifery care in this community.
