

Team 3 at The Midwifery Group is seeking a full time Registered Midwife

One-year locum starting as early as July 1, 2020, with the possibility of continuing as an ongoing team member.

This position is on a team of four midwives. On-call and clinic responsibilities are shared equally among us and our schedule allows for regular blocks of time off. Most of our call shifts are 24 hours, and we generally only work one weekend per month. We are an urban practice and book a caseload of around three full-time midwives and are at full capacity most months. We hold privileges at BC Women's Hospital. As an established team since 2012, we enjoy a high rate of repeat clients.

The Midwifery Group is a busy and supportive practice located in a sweet and cozy store-front location on Main Street in Vancouver, British Columbia, in a mixed neighbourhood close to the hospital, allied health providers and awesome restaurants. Established in 1998, we have a strong presence in our community and relish the diversity of our clientele. We believe in supportive and sustainable models of sharing call and we strive to maintain a healthy long term work-life balance. Our clinic currently operates with two teams of midwives that meet regularly for clinic meetings and pride ourselves on helping each other in times of need.

We are well-supported in the clinic by a wonderful duo of office managers for our administrative needs, dedicated billing, and practice owners who are also working midwives in the community. We use OSCAR EMR for our charting, so experience with this is a bonus.

Our team values our cooperative working relationships with each other and our maternity care colleagues. We are looking for a caring teammate to commit for one year with an interest in staying on the team beyond the first year. This initial locum could provide the opportunity for you to become familiar with our practice and see how you fit within our team and community. The ideal candidate is an adept team player with a collaborative and reliable work ethic who is a strong communicator with experience working in a team-based environment and commitment to providing exemplary midwifery care.

Both experienced midwives and new graduates from accredited midwifery programs are welcome to apply, as mentorship will be provided as needed. The applicant must be eligible for registration with the College of Midwives of BC and the Midwives Association of BC as well as eligible to apply for hospital privileges at BC Women's Hospital Department of Midwifery. We can support a midwife in accessing temporary privileges at BCWH through the Caseload Assistance Program, though your own privileges are a great asset.

We are accepting applications right meow and look forward to interviewing candidates who are an excellent fit for our enthusiastic, supportive (and fun!) team immediately. Come work with our wonderful group of midwives at The Midwifery Group in an amazing group practice!

Please submit your CV, three references, available start date and a letter of introduction as soon as possible to jjillfreeman@gmail.com We look forward to hearing from you!
