New Beginnings Midwifery in Prince George, BC is looking for a full-time midwife to join our Full Moon Team to start as soon as summer 2020!

The position will be full-time, shared-care with one other midwife and a flexible call schedule that supports a healthy work-life balance and a caseload of approximately 6-8 EDDs per month. We have a lovely clinic downtown that we share with another midwife duo, a birth doula and childbirth educator, and a registered massage therapist. We use the OSCAR EMR and office administrative support may be made available. The birth community in Prince George is supportive, with privileges at our level two hospital UHNBC with a full NICU and collegial relationships with nurses, obstetricians, pediatricians, anesthesiologists, GPs and other specialist care providers.

Prince George is a growing community with an unmet demand for midwifery care. With the expansion of the University of Northern British Columbia and associated University Hospital of Northern BC, the community is supporting more and more young families who see the opportunity in this affordable, fun northern city. Prince George is the hub of Northern BC, with all of the amenities of large city living paired with lovely northern community connectedness, as well as nearly backyard access to endless outdoor activities for those interested.

The ideal candidate will be eligible to work as a Registered Midwife in BC and will gain privileges at the University Hospital of Northern British Columbia. We are seeking at least a one year commitment.

Please contact Emily Rigney directly at fullmoonmidwives@gmail.com with your CV and letter of interest, or with questions about the position.
